

Home page
 [Login ] Title: SearchUnidentifiedHelp/FAQForumLinksLast completed movie pages

Le Père Noël a les yeux bleus, The Specialist, Les mauvaises fréquentations, Skinned Alive, Any Which Way You Can, MacGyver, Rent, Another Stakeout, Stakeout, Tatort - Der Lippenstiftmörder, My Super Ex-Girlfriend, Fifth Gear, Brothers and Sisters, Tunnel Vision, Red Heat, (more...)

Advertising*New/used wheelchair vans

Call 1-888-625-6335 fantastic deals Factory direct nationwide delivery

Ads by Google

Truck Mounted Forklifts

Unloading problems? Use a lorry mounted forklift

Advertise on this site

Electric Mobility Rascal 388

Electric Mobility Rascal 388 in Ali G Indahouse, Movie, 2002

Class: Others, Microcar

★★ Minor action vehicle or used in only a short scene

Comments about this vehicle*Author*Message*stronghold

2006-02-25 01:48

It's just a little electric disabled shopper (not meant to be on the road.! ...no tax or licence ... just made to help disabled people get around.!) ...this is one for the comments section ..not a road vehicle.

-- Last edit: 2006-02-25 03:19:51

wrenchhead

2006-02-25 02:37

Quote

...this is one for the comments section ..not a road vehicle.

I don't disagree but we have bulldozers, forklifts, backhoes, tracked landing craft, WWI tanks, etc. that are not road vehicles listed on the site so why not this?

stronghold

2006-02-25 03:26

..What next.?? ..those little electric push along scooters the kids ride about on.? ...and the little sit-in electric jeeps you can buy for your kids at Xmas for £200! ...and then there are the £50 remote control toy-cars.! (..then maybe i can upload some corgi ..dinky, matchbox etc...!!) ...in the words of Python ...it's getting silly now.!

wrenchhead

2006-02-25 03:48

Quote

..What next.?? ..those little electric push along scooters the kids ride about on.? ...and the little sit-in electric jeeps you can buy for your kids at Xmas for £200! ...and then there are the £50 remote control toy-cars.! (..then maybe i can upload some corgi ..dinky, matchbox etc...!!) ...in the words of Python ...it's getting silly now.!

I share your feelings, I was just mentioning the inconsistencies. Now that you mention it, I think we do have some models (ala matchbox) plus the cartoons. At least this one is actually on a roadway.

antp

2006-02-25 18:47

I would also not lit that on the site. The Golf Cart is the limit, I think. This one is too far from a real vehicle.

stronghold

2006-02-25 19:22

Quote

[quote]..What next.?? ..those little electric push along scooters the kids ride about on.? ...and the little sit-in electric jeeps you can buy for your kids at Xmas for £200! ...and then there are the £50 remote control toy-cars.! (..then maybe i can upload some corgi ..dinky, matchbox etc...!!) ...in the words of Python ...it's getting silly now.!

I share your feelings, I was just mentioning the inconsistencies. Now that you mention it, I think we do have some models (ala matchbox) plus the cartoons. At least this one is actually on a roadway.[/quote]

..Yes ..the toy cars are okay to be added to the movie comments page (..and even this electric shopper is okay)..I do agree with you about adding the cartoon pics ...should they really be here.? (some are recognisable as cartoon versions of real cars ...but alot are just rediculous.! ..can we add All the "Wacky racers" cars then.?)

Junkman

2006-02-25 23:56

If I read correctly, this is the International Movie CAR Database, right? So actually all bulldozers, forklifts, backhoes, tracked landing craft, WWI tanks, etc. should be removed along with all cars from TV-series.

As for the thing in the pic, it's an Electric Mobility Rascal 388 and whoever posted that thing for identification can order his here:

www.factoryoutletscooters.co.uk/electric\_mobility\_rascal.php

Jayzuz, gis an hour of sleep per night, willya?

antp

2006-02-25 23:58

At first trucks and bikes were not listed either (hence the name of the site, there were only cars). We can extend what kind of vehicles are listed but there must be a limite somewhere...

-- Last edit: 2006-02-25 23:58:50

Junkman

2006-02-26 00:05

Anyway, this ia a

Electric Mobility Rascal 388

So if you want to include it, you can update the 'unknown'.

Junkman

2006-02-26 00:06

Quote

At first trucks and bikes were not listed either (hence the name of the site, there were only cars). We can extend what kind of vehicles are listed but there must be a limite somewhere...

Trucks are cars, but bikes and scooters should - strictly spoken- go.

wrenchhead

2006-02-26 00:18

I don't really care what is listed on the site. Everyone has their own interests and I don't mind catering to them. My only problem is that I remain unsure as to what vehicles I should capture and list. I concentrate on cars but if some other strange vehicle is used by a character I have doubts/questions about listing it. An example is the Snowmobile used by Lex Luthor in Superman II. I really don't see much difference between that and a military half-track except the half-track has wheels rather than skis in the front. Technically, I guess both could be called half-tracks.

Alexander

2006-02-26 01:47

Well, I do care what is listed on this site, but it does not harm me if something is listed that I personally don't care for.

This site has evolved and will keep doing so. That is the way hypermedia works -- it is not like a book but it 'lives'. At the beginning there were cars. One has to start somewhere. Then came trucks, motorcycles, tractors, tanks and whatnot. All have one thing in common: they are vehicles.

Looking at the definition given for 'vehicle' in Wikipedia (English section) it starts with, I quote, 'Vehicles are non-living means of transportation. They are most often man-made (e.g. bicycles, cars, motorcycles, trains, ships, and aircraft), although some other means of transportation which are not made by man can also be called vehicles; examples include icebergs and floating tree trunks.'

I think we can exclude the icebergs and floating tree trunks. 😊

I would reduce it further to land vehicles that can move freely, i.e. need no tracks like trains and trams. This also excludes anything floating or flying. Furthermore I would exclude anything without an engine; so out go bicycles and tricycles and all carriages drawn by horses or other beasts of burden.

That leaves self powered human controlled motorised vehicles.

The oldest would be those from Nicolas-Joseph Cugnot (first truck) and Richard Trevithick (first bus) long before the first petrol car or bike from Benz, Daimler, Maybach or Marcus. And it ends, well, wherever you like it: Cadillac or Land-Rover, Cagiva or Lambretta, Caterpillar or Lanz, Chausson or Leyland, ...

I would say, add a vehicle if you think it fits into this site (possibly with a name). And if you are unsure add it into the comments. That is a good place for all those vehicles (in the definition's sense) that could interest others visiting this site.

In the end this site is for us AND a few dozen (hundert, thousand) visitors. Therefore for me my own rule is to add films that are interesting for me and to try to use good quality images and (hopefully) useful comments.

To cut a long story short (okay, it is too late for that 🗑️)

I had such a vehicle as this 'OAP walking aid' in another film but had no clue who made it. The image was small and I left it away. I had some sit-on lawnmowers which went into the comments section. I personally think the comments section would be a good place for this gadget, but as it now has a name do as you please.

Bebert 🇫🇷

2006-02-26 08:33

Bien que ce soit en anglais, je pense avoir saisi le sens général de l'intervention d'Alexander. Et je partage son avis. C'est vrai que le site a évolué et évoluera. Ça explique, par exemple, tous les manques de mon envoi dans "Up in Smoke", car au début je n'envoyai à Antoine que les voitures ayant un rôle. Aujourd'hui, c'est vrai que l'on devrait rebaptiser le site: Internet Movie Vehicules Database. La bonne "limite" me semble aujourd'hui être les véhicules autopropulsés terrestres non-guidés (Trams et trains). Mais ce n'est qu'un avis... 😊

antp 🇧🇪

2006-02-26 11:43

Well said, Alex 😊

Bebert >> Bah ce bidule électrique source du débat est autopropulsé aussi, et pourtant je ne le listerais pas...

wrenchhead 🇺🇸

2006-02-26 17:15

Quote

Well said, Alex 😊

Bebert >> Bah ce bidule électrique source du débat est autopropulsé aussi, et pourtant je ne le listerais pas...

I don't see any meaningful difference between listing this thing and the electric fork lift at www.imcdb.org/vehicle.php?id=22912 🗑️ Again, I don't mind what is listed - its the inconsistency that confuses me.

-- Last edit: 2006-02-26 17:19:12

antp 🇧🇪

2006-02-26 17:33

If we include this thing we will have to include all electric chairs then? I see a difference of size and use between this kind of things and a forklift or a golfcart...

The Forklift is a quite bigger vehicle. I do not see why you do not see a difference between these two... 🗑️ 🗑️

-- Last edit: 2006-02-26 17:34:58

wrenchhead 🇺🇸

2006-02-26 17:59

Quote

If we include this thing we will have to include all electric chairs then? I see a difference of size and use between this kind of things and a forklift or a golfcart...

The Forklift is a quite bigger vehicle. I do not see why you do not see a difference between these two... 🗑️

Don't misunderstand, I am not arguing to list it - just seeking clarification. Of course there are obvious differences but consider the similarities (relative to listing): both are electric, neither are road vehicles, neither have lights or any other road equipment. I simply don't understand why the Forklift is more acceptable for listing than the thing here. 🗑️

I am new to the site and am trying to understand the rules and criteria.

-- Last edit: 2006-02-26 18:11:57

antp 🇧🇪

2006-02-26 18:21

That's hard to define. But as I said there is a quite big different in their size.

The electric chair (what I call that thing) is just like wheelchairs, but with an added electric motor.

A forklift is more like a real vehicle, I do not think that all of them are electric (I thought that they used petrol, by the way). And if I am correct, some can get a license plate (well, I am nearly sure that I already saw some with a license plate, in Belgium).

There is the same problem for trolley-busses: according to what is said above, they should not be listed here since they are not as free as a bus. They are more like trams... (example to show how difficult is to describe acceptable vehicles 🗑️)

antp 🇧🇪

2006-02-26 18:29

By the way, here are some documents (in French 🗑️) of what must be added to a forklift to use it on the roads in France:

www.lomag-man.org/courriel%20internautes/conduiteexterne\_chariot2\_edited.jpg

www.lomag-man.org/courriel%20internautes/conduiteexterne\_chariot\_3.jpg the one posted above ( www.imcdb.org/vehicle.php?id=22912 ) is probably much smaller and does not apply to that, but it is still the same kind of vehicle.

wrenchhead 🇺🇸

2006-02-26 18:38

Thanks, I understand the trolley-bus difference. Forklifts have various engines/motors - petrol, natural gas, propane, electric and come in all sizes from small hand driven pallet movers to large 50 ton lifters. None are legal to license for road use in the US but you will occasionally see one being driven from one warehouse to another.

I will quit trying to make you describe acceptable vehicles 🗑️ I will put stuff I am unsure about in the comments and then move it if necessary.

Again, thanks for your help

Alexander 🇩🇪

2006-02-26 18:52

Quote

I am new to the site and am trying to understand the rules and criteria.

You are contributing full of verve for over a month now -- therefore you have moved from 'new' to at least 'youngtimer' status. 🇪🇺 There are some 'oldtimers' around, and even some 'vintage' enthusiasts, but, as I said, this site lives, and it lives and evolves due to us, you included. And through our comments and discussions we live and perform true democracy (and better than most countries, I would say 😊).

Whatever we decide now is okay but might be changed again in the future. Just to give an example: at the moment lawn-mowers are not included, but I think there is a film about the true story of an old man that crossed America on his lawn mower. That one would deserve 5 stars.

So, don't worry about it too much. There are still a lot of unidentified vehicles waiting to worry about! 😊

antp 🇧🇪

2006-02-26 19:02

Lawnmower where you can sit on it can be considered as a farming vehicle I guess... They look like small farming tractors.

By the way, I should re-watch Forrest Gump to include the one he uses 🇪🇺

wrenchhead 🇺🇸

2006-02-26 19:11

Quote

therefore you have moved from 'new' to at least 'youngtimer' status. 🇪🇺

Wow, its been over 60 years since I was called a young anything - I like this site more and more 🇪🇺

landrover1 🇺🇸

2006-09-16 22:51

this vehicle looks funny

Add a comment

You must login to post comments...

© 2004-2006 IMCDB.org - Contact us

Pictures are property of movie companies owner of the respective movies. Comments are property of their authors.

This site is best viewed with a modern web browser (Mozilla or Opera for example).

Page generated in 0.199 sec.